

Access to treatment is a human right

Our vision is a world where all people can face cancer with dignity and hope no matter where they live, and we need your support.

We provide humanitarian access to over 30,000 patients in 70+ underserved countries, distributing over 10 million daily doses of lifesaving treatment each year.

A patient in Mozambique receiving cancer treatment for the first time.

Why we're here

While an estimated 60% of cancer cases occur in low- and middle-income countries, only 5% of global spending on cancer is directed to these countries.*

Many cancer deaths are preventable with today's treatment options, but for thousands of patients in lower-income countries, treatment is out of reach. Our direct-to-patient drug donation model bridges access to today's most innovative and effective cancer therapies for chronic myeloid leukemia (CML) and treatable chronic cancers.

Also, did you know that cancer is the second cause of death globally? Providing access to innovative cancer treatment in countries without access has the potential to save thousands of lives not only today but in years to come.

*from "Global cancer control: responding to the growing burden, rising costs and inequalities in access" (<https://esmoopen.bmj.com/content/3/2/e000285>)

What We Do

Our network of physicians submit their patients' treatment requests

We extend our patient services including diagnostics and community support

Patients receive access to treatment and can face their cancer with dignity and hope

We organize the shipment from warehouse to pharmacies

We request the needed medicine from our generous pharmaceutical partners

Going beyond lifesaving

Gaining access to treatment is a chance for individuals to live their lives to the fullest. There's nothing more fulfilling than witnessing our patients reach every day milestones, like becoming parents, continuing their education, or giving back to their communities.

Even in the complex world we work in, our delivery model is tailored to every patient whose life's purpose is still unfolding.

"I started treatment when I was 18. Thanks to the treatment, I have a better quality of life. Being a mother is the best thing that could happen to me – I dedicate myself with a lot of love to my son."

—FIGRELLA

Mother and cancer patient from Perú, on treatment for 16 years

What your support means to our patients

Every donation helps us provide access to treatment to current and newly diagnosed patients living with chronic cancers. Help us do more to:

Continue providing access to treatment for at-risk patients in low- and middle-income countries.

Open our program in countries where treatment is currently unavailable.

Equip physicians with necessary diagnostic systems to treat and monitor patients.

"My hope came back as I returned to work. For the first six months, my health started to recover. Without this where would my life and family have gone?"

— BUNTHAN

Tour guide, father and cancer patient from Cambodia, on treatment for 3 years

Humanitarian access to cancer treatment is our #1 priority.

Join us to provide the most vulnerable patients with dignity, hope, and a future in the face of cancer.

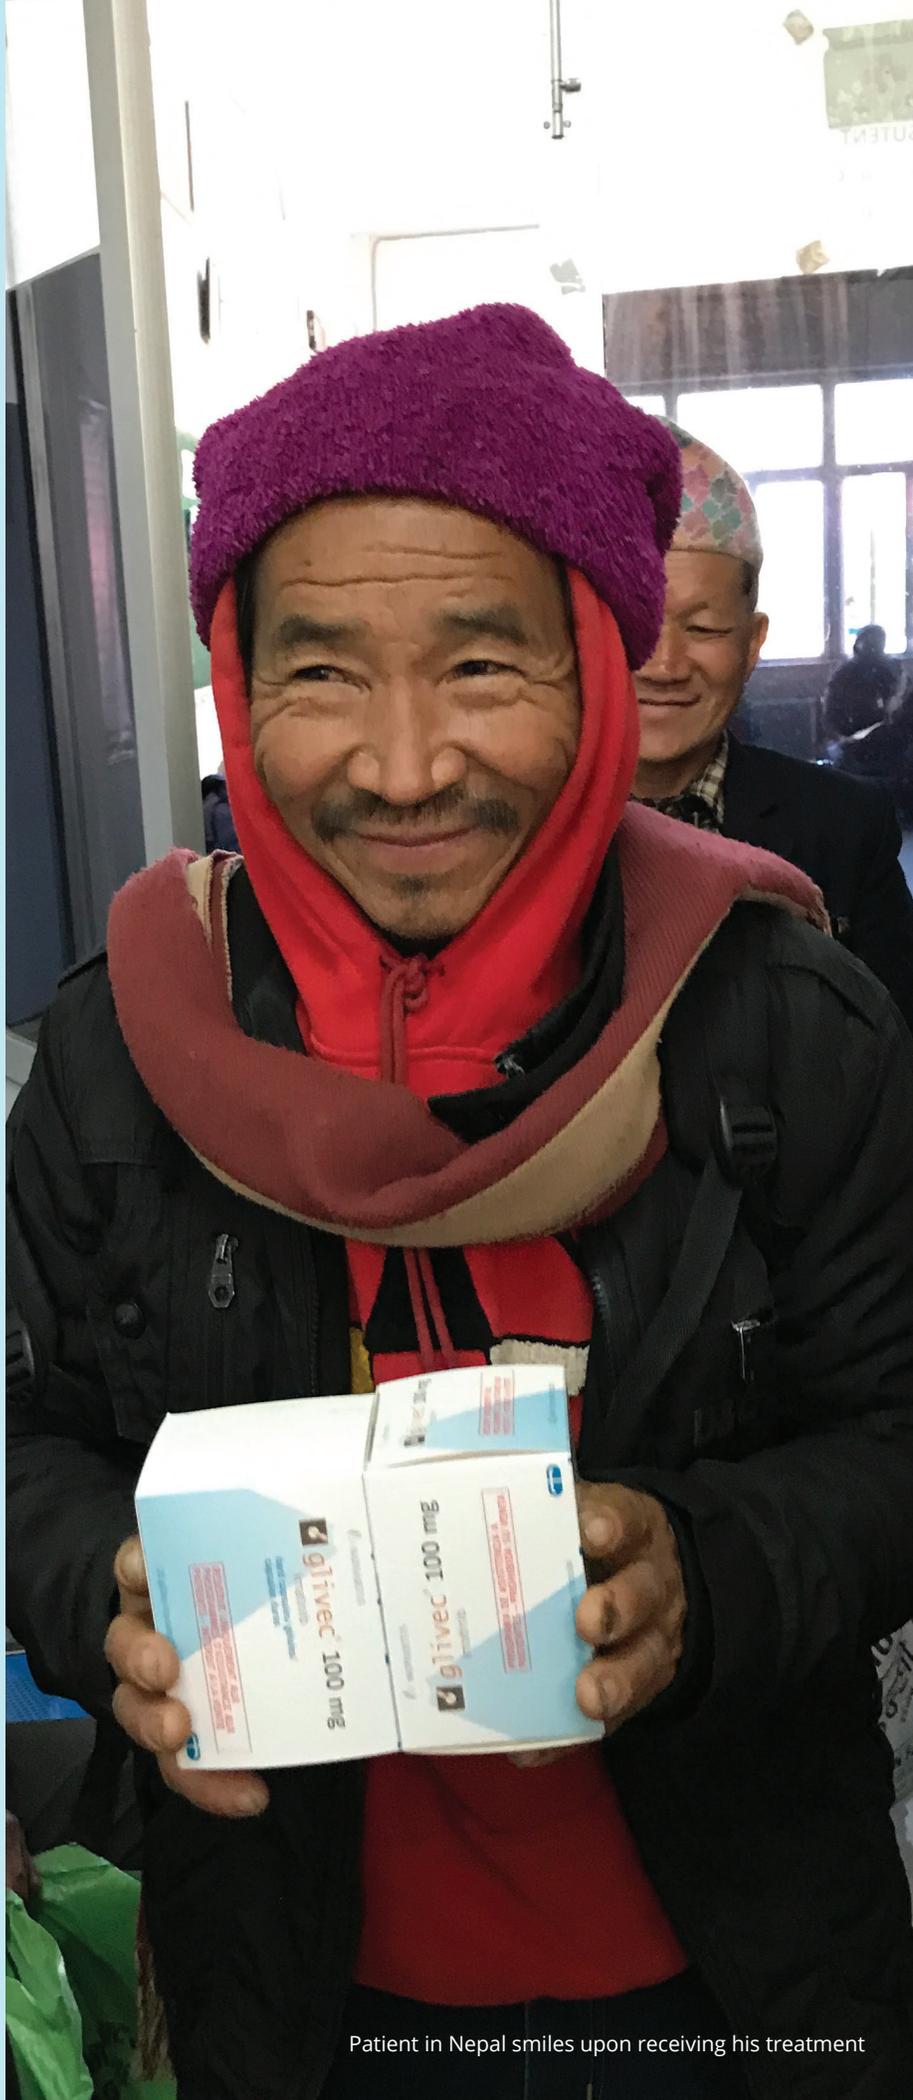

The Max Foundation

Dignity and hope in the face of cancer

1107 NE 45th Street
Suite 230
Seattle WA, 98105 USA

425-778-8660
info@themaxfoundation.org

themaxfoundation.org

Patient in Nepal smiles upon receiving his treatment